

“Exploring Jobs in Education”
An online course

“Exploring Jobs in Education” is an online course offered by Next Chapter Kansas City for persons interested in exploring paid work in a range of educational settings. This is the first of a series of courses focusing on employment options that strengthen communities. It is appropriate for adults of any age, including persons age 50 and older considering a second or Encore career. The course is offered over a two-month period, and students work at their own pace. The next session runs from September 26 to November 18. (Enrollment will be open through October 3)

"Exploring Jobs in Education" includes four lessons, a resource center, and a moderated forum all designed to provide helpful information and assist participants in determining their next best steps. The course was developed and is offered in cooperation with Kansas City Kansas Community College. Persons can register by phone with credit card payment at 913-288-7660 or online.
